Developer Center Partner Network

- Authentication and Login

  - Single Sign On via My VMware for both Developer Center and Developer Center Partner Network

  - If you already have a My VMware account we will use it, otherwise we will automatically create a new one for you using your vmdev.net email address

  - Developer Center will continue to also accept Partner Central credentials to enable you to gain access to your Server and Storage program content previously available on Partner Central.

  - You will need to change your credentials in the Workbench Dashboard to your new My VMware login

FAQ

- Does this change how I submit certifications or requests for certification support?

  - No. Any certifications that you submit via workbench or via SRs in My VMware will continue to use that process.

- Are all my artifacts and files from vmdev.net migrated?

  - Yes, regardless of status or age

  - Email discussions via the forums will be archived but not migrated

- When does Developer Center Partner Network launch and when will I receive my new login information?

  - Monday, March 17th

- Will I still be able to access vmdev.net?

  - vmdev.net will be put in read-only mode on Friday March 14th at 6pm PDT and will remain available for read only access through April 17th.
